

Fall Cleanup

It is very important to clean up your landscape at the end of the growing season to remove debris and leaves from bed and turf areas. Aside from harboring diseases and insects this debris can also promote the growth of detrimental molds and fungi.

Fall is also a good time to clean out your vegetable and annuals beds. This will be helpful for the upcoming season. You can prep your beds in the fall or spring.

It is also an ideal time to add wood mulch products to planting beds to help conserve moisture and to incubate dormant plants.
